Grand Opening of Baltimore Print Studios.

Baltimore Print Studios is thrilled to announce their Grand Opening on Sunday October 17th, from 3-7 PM. They are located at 18 W. North Ave., between Maryland Ave. and Charles St. in the Station North Arts District.

Baltimore Print Studios is the only public-access printmaking studio in Baltimore, offering screenprinting and letterpress workshops and hourly studio access. BPS is owned and operated by Kyle Van Horn, a Baltimore artist, designer and printer, with the assistance of Kim Bentley, a DC/Maryland designer and printer.

Opening their doors to the public for the first time, BPS will be offering hands-on printmaking demos in both letterpress and screenprinting, and handing out information on workshops and studio access. Light refreshments will be provided. The event is free and open to the public.

Kyle Van Horn grew up in Lafayette, IN, and has lived in Baltimore, MD since 1999. He received his BFA in Painting from MICA, and currently works for the school as the Technician and Administrative Assistant in the Printmaking Department.
